

Strategic Leadership in Modern Local Government

A national programme for developing managers into strategic leaders in local government

What the Programme Offers

This highly successful in-person programme, recognised by the Institute of Leadership and Management (ILM), was introduced in partnership with Chief Executives and the Local Government Association. It aims to develop practical strategic leadership skills immediately applicable in the workplace. This is the 44th cohort, and over 700 local authority managers have attended the programme thus far. It is held at King's College, The Strand, London.

Participants will learn how to challenge future service provision in a rapidly changing digital world and lead and deliver successful change using "hard skills" of commercial and strategic decision-making and "soft skills" of influencing, persuading, inspiring high performance, and building agile cross-functional collaborative teams. They will also gain practical tools and techniques for leading strategic and tactical change.

We developed a very successful virtual classroom approach during Covid. Our online tools for collaborative working on Strategic Analysis etc. have proved to be very beneficial for delegates and their teams. We now combine In-Person delivery with online analysis tools.

What are the Outcomes?

Participants will gain 21st-century strategic leadership skills enabling them to lead practically and virtually, ready to:

- Apply strategic thinking skills and tools to improve the quality of decision-making and reimagine services in a post-Covid world
- Apply commercial thinking using tools and skills to understand competitive forces and customer analysis
- Lead strategic change, practically and virtually, by creating a vision and appropriate change strategy
- Lead implementation by translating strategy into change projects and programmes
- Increase leadership influence, build trusting relationships and psychologically safe working environments
- Build high performing agile and virtual internal and multi agency collaborative teams
- Make a positive impact by communicating with influence
- Be better equipped to make a case for ongoing investment in and recognition of your services.

"I always enjoy supporting these events – you do get a consistently high standard of participant and that helps the conversation to flow" Graham Farrant, Chief Executive, BCP Council

"It is so refreshing to have "course leaders" who are genuinely enthusiastic and interested in the content and our contributions. The way you do that and deliver the content with passion creates such a different dynamic and makes you feel like peers too." Strategic Senior Manager

Learning Environment

We employ a blended learning including the teaching of world class principles and concepts; practical group exercises using tools and technology to apply learning to work. We can use our virtual classrooms with online collaborative working if in person impossible. We use MBTI® and other tools to increase self-awareness and personal reflection, particularly our innovative Headspace® and Real-Time Learning® techniques which involve coaching in the natural environment and live challenges to discover breakthrough insights.

Knowledge Share groups will be established and provided with a clear structure to maximise the sessions. You will be given the option using an online 360 feedback and personal development tool so that you can set clear development goals.

Institute of Leadership and Management Certification#

Delegates will achieve ILM certification on successful completion of the programme.

Group Size

Limited to 16 participants to maximise learning.

Venue

King's College London, in person typically. We have the option to move online if necessary (rail strikes etc).

Our Virtual classroom uses online collaborative tools for in-person breakouts.
